

ADAC Velotour Fully Booked – Volunteers Still Needed

Once again, the cycling classic has sold out early – this time six weeks before the start. An impressive field of 10,000 cycling enthusiasts is eagerly awaiting May 1st. While online registration for 2025 is now closed, all eyes are already on next year. Those who want to secure their spot for May 1, 2026, can now pre-register at adac-velotour.de. This ensures early notification when online registration opens, allowing participants to grab the best prices.

For the third consecutive year, the event has reached capacity well before the registration deadline – a clear sign of the ongoing cycling boom and the growing popularity of the ADAC Velotour. Among the 10,000 participants, the majority have opted for the most challenging of the three routes. Around 75 percent will take on the 103 km “Taunus Classic”, featuring legendary climbs such as the Feldberg and Mammolshainer Stich, making the event a truly unforgettable experience.

Volunteers Needed for May 1st

To ensure a smooth and safe event, a large team of dedicated volunteers is essential. In particular, course marshals are needed to secure key points along the route – both for the professional race and when amateur cyclists tackle the ADAC Velotour. Additional volunteers are also required for athlete services, assisting with medals, refreshments, and drinks for finishers.

Any responsible adult is welcome to take part! All volunteers will receive training beforehand to ensure they are fully prepared for their role. As a thank-you, each volunteer will receive an exclusive fan T-shirt, a goodie bag, and course marshals will also be provided with a high-visibility vest. Additionally, course marshal positions are paid. Groups and clubs are also encouraged to sign up and take on entire sections of the route together.
